

UN Habitat to help Indonesia provide clean water, sanitation p 14

RP has tightening bias as Tenagenco predicts inflows p 6

KAI set to increase train fare for economy class p 20

CURRENCY: DOLLAR 11,916 (Thu) 11,967 COMPOSITE INDEX: 4,964.27 (Thu) 4,847.70

MARKING

Gov sets export tax cut in draft regulation: Official

Wido Kusuma and Michael Taylor
TRANSPARENCY

Indonesia is drafting a new regulation on the export tax cut for raw materials. The draft regulation would be approved by the cabinet in the next few days, according to an official in the Ministry of Finance.

The new regulation would reduce the export tax on raw materials from 10 percent to 5 percent. The regulation would also reduce the export tax on certain raw materials from 10 percent to 5 percent. The regulation would also reduce the export tax on certain raw materials from 10 percent to 5 percent.

The regulation would also reduce the export tax on certain raw materials from 10 percent to 5 percent. The regulation would also reduce the export tax on certain raw materials from 10 percent to 5 percent.

Piles of concrete

A pile of concrete blocks is shown in the image. The blocks are stacked in a neat pile, and the image shows the texture of the concrete.

The image shows a pile of concrete blocks, which are used in construction. The blocks are stacked in a neat pile, and the image shows the texture of the concrete.

A pile of concrete blocks is shown in the image. The blocks are stacked in a neat pile, and the image shows the texture of the concrete.

Wido Kusuma and Michael Taylor
TRANSPARENCY

The regulation would also reduce the export tax on certain raw materials from 10 percent to 5 percent. The regulation would also reduce the export tax on certain raw materials from 10 percent to 5 percent.

The regulation would also reduce the export tax on certain raw materials from 10 percent to 5 percent. The regulation would also reduce the export tax on certain raw materials from 10 percent to 5 percent.

The regulation would also reduce the export tax on certain raw materials from 10 percent to 5 percent. The regulation would also reduce the export tax on certain raw materials from 10 percent to 5 percent.

The regulation would also reduce the export tax on certain raw materials from 10 percent to 5 percent. The regulation would also reduce the export tax on certain raw materials from 10 percent to 5 percent.

Chocolate makers

Chocolate makers are looking for a niche in the market of the world's top chocolate producers. The image shows a group of people, including children, gathered around a table displaying various chocolate products. Some are holding up pieces of chocolate, and others are looking at the display with interest. The setting appears to be a market or a fair.

Firms to sell dollar bonds despite rising concerns over private debt

By Michael Taylor

TRANSPARENCY

Several Indonesian firms are planning to issue dollar bonds in the next few months, despite rising concerns over private debt.

The firms are planning to issue dollar bonds in the next few months, despite rising concerns over private debt. The firms are planning to issue dollar bonds in the next few months, despite rising concerns over private debt.

The firms are planning to issue dollar bonds in the next few months, despite rising concerns over private debt. The firms are planning to issue dollar bonds in the next few months, despite rising concerns over private debt.

Several Indonesian firms are planning to issue dollar bonds in the next few months, despite rising concerns over private debt. The firms are planning to issue dollar bonds in the next few months, despite rising concerns over private debt.

The firms are planning to issue dollar bonds in the next few months, despite rising concerns over private debt. The firms are planning to issue dollar bonds in the next few months, despite rising concerns over private debt.

The firms are planning to issue dollar bonds in the next few months, despite rising concerns over private debt. The firms are planning to issue dollar bonds in the next few months, despite rising concerns over private debt.

Several Indonesian firms are planning to issue dollar bonds in the next few months, despite rising concerns over private debt. The firms are planning to issue dollar bonds in the next few months, despite rising concerns over private debt.

The firms are planning to issue dollar bonds in the next few months, despite rising concerns over private debt. The firms are planning to issue dollar bonds in the next few months, despite rising concerns over private debt.

The firms are planning to issue dollar bonds in the next few months, despite rising concerns over private debt. The firms are planning to issue dollar bonds in the next few months, despite rising concerns over private debt.

Several Indonesian firms are planning to issue dollar bonds in the next few months, despite rising concerns over private debt. The firms are planning to issue dollar bonds in the next few months, despite rising concerns over private debt.

The firms are planning to issue dollar bonds in the next few months, despite rising concerns over private debt. The firms are planning to issue dollar bonds in the next few months, despite rising concerns over private debt.

The firms are planning to issue dollar bonds in the next few months, despite rising concerns over private debt. The firms are planning to issue dollar bonds in the next few months, despite rising concerns over private debt.

CURRENCY

Rupiah still conducive for business despite depreciation, says BI

By Michael Taylor
TRANSPARENCY

The Bank of Indonesia (BI) says the rupiah remains conducive for business despite depreciation. BI says the rupiah remains conducive for business despite depreciation.

The Bank of Indonesia (BI) says the rupiah remains conducive for business despite depreciation. BI says the rupiah remains conducive for business despite depreciation.

The Bank of Indonesia (BI) says the rupiah remains conducive for business despite depreciation. BI says the rupiah remains conducive for business despite depreciation.

The Bank of Indonesia (BI) says the rupiah remains conducive for business despite depreciation. BI says the rupiah remains conducive for business despite depreciation.

The Bank of Indonesia (BI) says the rupiah remains conducive for business despite depreciation. BI says the rupiah remains conducive for business despite depreciation.

The Bank of Indonesia (BI) says the rupiah remains conducive for business despite depreciation. BI says the rupiah remains conducive for business despite depreciation.